1. Write a program that starts both the right and left motors at quarter speed when the bump switch is pressed. Increase the speed of both motors by one quarter each time your hand moves closer to the Ultrasonic Rangefinder until they are both running at full speed. When the light sensor detects an increase in light, stop all motors and end the program.